"How the media promote and hinder the work for peace – A view from Palestine"

The conflict in the Middle East is a constant central theme in the media. For some years organisations both in Palestine, Israel and internationally have been monitoring media coverage of this conflict. In this workshop we will take some of these studies and look at the reporting of the conflict by the Palestinian, Israeli and international media: how the conflict is portrayed, what messages lie behind the headlines and to what extent such a portrayal promotes and hinders the work for peace on the ground.
